CERTIFICATION BY THE AUTHOR FOR ARTICLES AND BOOK REVIEWS SUBMITTED FOR PUBLICATION IN DOON THEOLOGICAL JOURNAL

As a Christian theological study journal, Doon Theological Journal stands for the foundational Christian principles. While DTJ is committed to serious academic exercise, it is also grounded in deep commitment to Christian principles and values enshrined in the Bible and the historic Christian faith. Therefore, we emphasize great sense of honesty and truthfulness in academic writings and publishing through DTJ.

Writers who submit articles and book reviews for publication through Doon Theological Journal are expected to answer the following questions and sign at the end to confirm that the work they submit to DTJ is their own genuine and original work, and that it is in no way a plagiarized work. The publication of the submitted article/book review is subject to the author's answering the questions and signing this document. The completed form should be mailed to the Managing Editor at the above address along with the article or book review.

1. Do you guarantee that the material you are submitting to DTJ for publication is your own original and genuine work? Yes No
2. Have you followed the established academic norms in the writing of the article? Yes No
3. Have you duly acknowledged ideas and quotations that you have borrowed from other sources/authors? Yes No
4. Have you properly/sufficiently paraphrased those sentences/passages you have drawn from other sources/authors? Yes No
5. Do you undertake the responsibility in case your work is found to be plagiarized and that the editorial board of DTJ is no way responsible for this error? Yes No
